

March 2011

The Art of Breakout

Pantry / Breakout Areas

The pantry no matter what size - is the one zone that needs to reinforce comfort and social interaction.

As today's organizations are characterized by frequent changes and work processes, hence office breakout spaces are also an increasingly developed zone that is suited to give users the correct type of space for different tasks they do.

Such a space must not feel cluttered and it should reflect design elements subtly suited for conveniently positioned storage cabinets handy to preparation areas.

It is important to understand the art of how to keep the design suited to your concept. The right colour scheme receives due recognition.

A pantry, café or breakout zone are node areas within an office to provide the shared resource that are useful for people. It's no secret that the breakout area doubles up and performs variable duties for small meeting groups, brainstorming area's or a place to relax with a favorite i-phone game. Furthermore, people from all over the world may pass through and delight themselves because of the breakout theme created.

Imagine this "A breakout café..., filled with people, full of energy, is a good fundamental"